4. In the morning, check to see that your water has turned to ice and is hard.
5. You might need some help from an adult to cut open the freezer bag with some scissors.

6. You should have an ice block with your animals trapped inside!

It is time to rescue them.

Make sure you have an adult to help with this part.

- Using a jug of warm water see how long it takes to rescue your animals

Take photos of each step. You can even record how long it takes to melt and a picture of what your frozen animals look like throughout the rescue.
